

10-26-2014

Interview with Geoffrey Buck

Jamie Gooch
University of Wyoming

Follow this and additional works at: <http://repository.uwyo.edu/ioh>

Part of the Arts and Humanities Commons

Publication Information

Gooch, Jamie, "Interview with Geoffrey Buck" (2014). Immigrant Oral Histories. Paper 12.
<http://repository.uwyo.edu/ioh/12>

This Audio is brought to you for free and open access by the History at Wyoming Scholars Repository. It has been accepted for inclusion in Immigrant Oral Histories by an authorized administrator of Wyoming Scholars Repository. For more information, please contact scholcom@uwyo.edu.

Interview Overview

- Discussed his childhood to start the interview
 - Growing up in Austria
 - Family life
 - Living conditions
- His migration
 - Motive to leave-education
 - His journey to America
 - His first movements in the US upon arriving
- His preconceptions of America
 - Ideas about America from media growing up
 - A bit of Austrian history in the twentieth century
 - Expectations about life in America
- Background on Austria during his migration time period
 - Discussed the educational landscape in Austria
 - Talked about the Austrian philosophical landscape when he was younger
- First experiences in America
 - Initial impressions of food, architecture, culture
 - Restrictions he felt in America
- Comparison of America and Austria
 - Discussed pros and cons of each country
 - Concerns about America's future

- Discussed ongoing relationship with Austria
- Enjoyment of life in America
 - Loves teaching at UW
 - America has presented him with career opportunities
- Discussed Philosophy and History
 - Talked about approaches when studying History
 - Related Philosophy to History
- Inquired about his personal life
 - His hobbies and interests
- Discussed language barrier relating to his migration
 - How he learned English growing up in Austria
 - His difficulties understanding television upon arriving in America
- Reflections on his migration story
 - He feels privileged
 - Does not feel like a foreigner
- Thoughts on present-day Austria
 - American culture intertwined in Austrian life
 - Interplay between the two countries