REPORT OF NECROLOGY COMMITTEE

September 8, 1962

The Necrology Committee of the Wyoming State Bar Association regrets to report that seven respected members of the Wyoming State Bar have passed on to a higher jurisdiction.

Frank A. Barrett, Harold H. Healy, Noel Morgan, Walter A. Muir, Tom Rickard, Keith Thomson and R. Dwight Wallace cannot be present in person at this meeting, but they will be long remembered by those present here, either as close friends, respected acquaintances or worthy opponents.

FRANK A. BARRETT

Frank A. Barrett was born on a small farm in what is now part of the City of Omaha, Nebraska, on November 19, 1892. He was one of eight children of Patrick and Elizabeth Cullen Barrett, who moved westward to Nebraska from Pennsylvania. Both of the parents of Frank A. Barrett were school teachers. He received his degree of bachelor of arts and bachelor of law from Creighton University in 1916. Immediately thereafter (due to the outbreak of World War I) he abandoned his plans to set up a law practice and entered the now disbanded balloon corps of the United States Air Force, serving his country in that capacity for 17 months. Married in 1919 to his childhood sweetheart by Father Flanagan, the founders of Boys Town, the Barretts moved to Lusk, Wyoming, to establish his law practice and rear their family. Beginning as County Attorney Niobrara County, he was next elected to the Wyoming State Legislature, then to the United States House of Representatives. He returned to Wyoming as Governor in 1950, and in 1953 began a six year term in the United States Senate. He was the only Wyoming citizen ever to serve his State in both houses of the United States Congress and as Governor. In 1959 he was selected as General Counsel for Department of Agriculture by appointment of the President. His first wife, Alice Donoghue Barrett, died in 1956. He died in Cheyenne, Wyoming, on May 30, 1962 at the age of 69 years. He was survived by his second wife, Augusta K. Barrett, and three children, Marilyce Barrett Tobin and James E. Barrett, members of the Wyoming Bar Association, and Dr. Francis A. Barrett, M.D., and his brother and his sister.

Harold H. Healy

Harold H. Healy was born in Denver, Colorado, the son of a prominent physician. He attended the University of Colorado for his pre-law courses and Columbia University, where he graduated with LL.B. in 1914. He was in his lifetime active in the Alumni Association of Columbia. During World War I he served with the Infantry and Air Corps in England. He returned to Denver in 1919 and taught for a time in the Denver University Law School and later organized his own law firm in that city. In 1934 he joined the Ohio Oil Co. as its attorney for its Rocky Mountain Division. In 1942 he became manager of the division and in 1954 he retired after 20 years of outstanding service to his company, having won many citations for outstanding service in the oil industry. He was a member of both the Colorado and Wyoming Bar Associations. In 1954 he returned to the active practice of law to become a member of the firm of Brown, Healy, Drew, Apostolos & Barton in Casper. He was active in many civic, social and church organizations, having served two times as president of the Rocky Mountain Oil & Gas Association. He died on November 26, 1961 and was survived by his wife, Mrs. Lorena Healey, now of Denver, Harold Healey, Jr., his son, now practicing law in New York City, and Robert Healy, his son, of Salt Lake City, Utah.

His childhood days were spent in Basin and Bonanaza areas. His family moved to the Worland area in 1905 where his father owned a ranch in the Slick Creek area. He was graduated from the Worland High School in 1913 as a member of the high school’s first graduating class, and thereafter he attended Drake University Law School, from which he was graduated in 1916. He returned to Worland to establish his law practice, but his practice was interrupted by World War I, in which he joined the army and served overseas with the 148th Field Artillery. He returned to Worland after the war and served as County Attorney from 1932-1934 and 1950 to 1958. He also served as Worland Town Clerk for more than 20 years, in addition to being City Attorney, Police Judge, and participated in many other official and civic activities. He died of a heart attack on November 5, 1961 and was survived by his wife, Helen Morgan, and a son, Tom, of Worland, a daughter, Mrs. O. J.
